ABSTRACT

An apparatus and method for caching data in an associative memory cache using a single non-overlapping entry, wherein the non-overlapping entry is created from a matching entry and one or more overlapping entries that are stored in a primary associative memory.